

Once upon a time, a dog and a cat lived in the same house.

The cat did not like the dog and often made fun of it.

Cat used to say, “They keep me inside the house.”

“But you are tied outside and lick leftovers.”

One day, a delicious smell came from the kitchen.

The dog smelled it and could not sleep.

The dog asked the cat,

“What is that nice smell?”

The cat replied, “They are making Appa. It is not for you.” The dog asked eagerly, “Will you give me some? "The clever cat said, “Come after everyone sleeps. Will take you inside.” At night, both went to the kitchen.

The dog ate a lot of Appa. The cat also ate a lot and, after finishing, the cat made a sound “meow”. The sound woke the people at home.

They came with sticks. thinking that the cat is eating Appa. The cat jumped out of the window and escaped.

The poor dog could not escape. The owner was standing next to the door and beat the dog up, and it ran away crying.

From that day, the dog said, “I will live even by licking leftover leaves, but I will never make a friendship with a cat again.”

Moral

Choose your friends wisely.

Bad company always leads to trouble.